Care and Cleaning of Your Fine Jewelry

Care for your Championship ring as you would any fine jewelry, with these suggested guidelines. To preserve the beauty and luster of your ring, polish with a good jewelry cleaner or wash with mild soap. Dry with a soft cloth. Damage to your ring may occur when using a brush, sharp instrument, or rough cloth for cleaning. Note: should tarnish appear, it can be removed with a fine brand of silver polish applied with a soft cloth.

To protect your ring from permanent damage, avoid any contact with mercury, alkalis or harsh acids and cleaning materials. These harmful chemicals could cause permanent discoloration to your ring. Be sure to remove your ring before coming in contact with these substances.

To safeguard against breakage or nicks, always remove your ring before engaging in sports or heavy labor and store it carefully in a protected location. Quality simulated gemstones and precious metals cannot withstand abuse of this nature.

A very small number of people may experience a reaction between their skin oils and quality jewelry products, which may result in a black colored smudge on their skin. This condition can generally be avoided by cleaning the jewelry more frequently as described above.

Give your ring the care it deserves for years of wearing it with pride.
